Tattoos As A Window To The Psyche
Ray White, LPC/MHSP/AS, NCC, ACS

Presentation Summary
The social and behavioral correlates for individuals with tattoos are varied, paradoxical, and multi-faceted (Koch, 2015). This workshop will explore aspects of personality and well-being as viewed through the lens of tattoo acquisition. Can tattoos be viewed as a window to the psyche? Join us to find out....

Presentation Objectives
1. Identify possible personality differences between tattooed and non-tattooed individuals.
2. Identify suggested correlates between tattoo acquisition and emotional well being.
3. Suggest possible ways talking about skin art can inform the counseling process.
